

Thibodeaux pulled his pirogue onto the bank and walked toward Boudreaux's house. Boudreaux sat on the porch and stared at the floor - as he got closer Thibodeaux saw a chess board on the floor. Boudreaux's rabbit dog, Rex, lay on the other side of the board.

As Thibodeaux watched Boudreaux moved one of his Bishops to attack the opposite King. Rex stood and studied the board, then used his nose to push a Knight into a blocking position.

Boudreaux moved a Rook to attack again - Rex pushed up a Pawn to block.

Boudreaux moved his Queen to cover an attack on the Pawn - Rex studied the board from several angles, barked once and left.

"Ya no when ye're beat, don't ya?" Boudreaux yelled at the dog.

"Boudreaux, dat was a mazing", Thibodeaux said.

"Yeah, I lernt dat double tack from Old Man John, ain't nobody seed it comin' yet", Boudreaux said.

"But Boudreaux, I never seed anything like dat bafore. Dat is one smart dog", Thibodeaux said.

"Nah, he ain't dat smart. He noda rules, but I beat him tree outta ever five games", Boudreaux bragged.
